Residents enjoyed the delicious food, free entertainment and informative stalls at the Woodberry Down Estate fun day on 6 June

THE annual Woodberry Down Estate regeneration fun day brought together hundreds of residents on 6 June, to enjoy delicious food, live music and many fun activities.

Visitors were the first to try out the Council's 'I Love Hackney' cab, where they got to share their thoughts on the changing face of the borough. The taxi will be touring community events this summer as part of the Council's 'Hackney: A Place For Everyone?' consultation, which aims to speak to thousands of residents. Niki, who lives on the estate, said: "We always look forward to coming along to the fun day each year. This was the best one so far." For more see pages 8-9.

Hackney Today is published by the London Borough of Hackney. It has a print run of 108,000 copies and is delivered free to every home and business in the borough. The Council uses it to communicate public service information to residents. It is published fortnightly in order to carry statutory advertising, such as planning and traffic notices, which is cheaper for the taxpayer than using another local paper. The law does not allow for statutory notices to be published solely online or in a less frequent publication.

The paper's official, door-to-door delivery is 91,412 copies per issue, according to Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC)

A number of developments from London Overground are set to boost Hackney's transport links

Transport upgrade

A SERIES of improvement schemes by London Overground are set to further boost Hackney's transport links.

Longer, five-car trains are currently being introduced on the North London Line, serving Dalston Kingsland, Hackney Central, Homerton and Hackney Wick. These can carry 25 per cent more passengers, which is the same as the trains already serving the East London Line from Dalston Junction, Haggerston, Hoxton, and Shoreditch High Street.

Also due to open this summer is the Hackney Interchange – a direct pedestrian walkway between Hackney Central and Hackney Downs stations – which is currently under construction next to the North London Line. The project was jointly funded by the Council, Transport for London (TfL) and Network Rail.

“The welcome expansion of TfL's Overground network is another important step in providing Hackney with a frequent service”

London Overground has also taken over the Liverpool Street to Chingford, and Enfield Town to Cheshunt services, which means all stations are staffed at all times and are undergoing improvements.

Furthermore, now that these services have transferred to TfL, over 80 per cent of rail journeys have reduced in price and all TfL concessions apply, giving many customers substantial savings. The remaining 20 per cent of fares remain unchanged.

Customers on London Overground routes in East and North East London are also set to travel on new air-conditioned trains from 2018. The new trains will have similar features to the fleet that serves other parts of the Overground network, including walk-through carriages, air-conditioning and improved accessibility.

Finally, plans are being developed for an expansion of the ticket hall at Hackney Central station – the 76th busiest station in the country, which puts it in the top three per cent of Britain's 2,537 stations.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration, said: “The increase in Overground capacity to five car trains, the improvements to Hackney Central, and the new Interchange come on the back of Council campaigning and are much needed as the Overground's success places more demand on the local network.

“The welcome expansion of TfL's Overground network to take in the Liverpool Street lines is another important step in providing Hackney with a frequent rail service.”

"I'm absolutely thrilled and still in shock. It is really great to be recognised for all the hard work that my fabulous staff have put in. I'll have been Head here for 10 years in January, so this is a really good celebration of how far the school has come, and all the achievements along the way."

News in brief

Public Space Protection Order withdrawn following feedback

THE Council is reviewing plans to tackle anti-social behaviour after withdrawing its Public Space Protection Order (PSPO) following feedback from the public. The order, which had been in place since April, was aimed at helping a minority of people who have refused help from the Council and its partner, homeless charity Thames Reach. It gave the Council powers to intervene and help vulnerable people – many of whom have serious addictions or mental health issues – as well as tackle behaviour such as drunkenness, verbal abuse and public urination.

The Council will now look at how best to tackle the anti-social behaviour in the area that is having a very real impact on residents and businesses.

Deputy Mayor of Hackney, Cllr Sophie Linden, said: "In the light of ongoing public concern, we have decided to withdraw Hackney's Public Space Protection Order, whilst we further review how we can best tackle anti-social behaviour for the benefit of all our residents, and further assess the process and impact of the order. "Hackney has never had any intention of victimising vulnerable people. On the contrary, we are committed to helping and supporting those who need it most. We are trying to use all the tools at our disposal to keep this a safe place for everyone; no one has a right to behave in a way that intimidates others. However, we recognise the strength of feeling on this issue, and will of course consult on any future plans."

The Prince Edward is second Hackney pub given extra planning protection

THE Council has granted a second historical pub, The Prince Edward, in E9, planning protection.

The victory comes in the wake of the announcement last month that The Chesham Arms, E9, was set to reopen, after also being granted planning protection as an Asset of Community Value.

Built in 1886, The Prince

Edward in Wick Road has served local people for generations and is renowned for its Caribbean, soul and Irish music nights.

The Asset of Community Value status creates an additional layer of protection for the pub, meaning the owners would not be permitted to sell it without first offering community groups the chance to purchase it.

This latest news follows a determined campaign by community group The Friends of The Prince Edward who, in 2012, rallied against the owner of the property after plans were submitted to demolish the pub and build residential flats on the site.

The Council refused the planning application, noting the social and cultural importance of the public house as key reasons for the ruling amongst other planning policy grounds.

Josh Clarke from The Friends of The Prince Edward group, said: "The Prince Edward is a decent, affordable and well attended local boozery, with a great atmosphere that caters for the community."

NEIGHBOURS got together in the sunshine across Hackney for picnics, parties and cook-offs as part of the Big Lunch on 7 June.

Hackney Homes residents were offered up to £500 funding to organise an event on their estate that encouraged neighbours to get to know each other in a fun and friendly setting.

Twenty-three Tenant and Resident Associations (TRA) and community groups received a total of £11,500 to hold an event that brought the community together.

Residents on the Morland estate brought along a dish each and opened a new community garden, designed and created over the last few months, to spruce up their estate.

Finally, at Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, families got together to enjoy a treasure hunt, face painting, storytelling, tug-of-war and cookery demonstrations. Local theatre groups were also on hand to keep children entertained.

The Rio cinema through the ages, with its many different names

From Rio with love

THE Rio in Dalston, Hackney's last independent cinema, is celebrating its centenary this month, after launching as the borough's first public cinema in 1915.

It hasn't always been known as the Rio however. In fact, it seems to have had more reinventions than the James Bond franchise.

Called the Kingsland Empire when it opened in April 1915, it became The Classic in 1937, until the 1950s when it changed its name three times in 12 months: The Classic Cartoon Cinema, The Classic Continental and then back to The Classic.

In 1970, it was rechristened The Tatler Cinema Club for five years, before reverting back to The Classic again. Then, on 9 April 1976, the cinema opened its doors under its current guise as the Rio and hasn't looked back since.

“The Rio is a really important local community cinema. It's a standout example of London's East End heritage”

Specialising in mainstream and art house films, the not-for-profit cinema reinvests the money from ticket sales back into the maintenance of the historic building.

It also funds educational work and local community events, such as classic matinees for over 60s, and affordable ticket prices.

Oliver Meek, the cinema's Executive Director, said: “The Rio is a really important local community cinema. It's a standout example of London's East End heritage as there really aren't many picture palace-style cinemas – those using traditional film projection as well as digital – left, not only across London, let alone throughout the UK.”

Oliver, who began his role in February, added: “Since starting at the Rio I've been overwhelmed by the love from local people and the reaction of those new to the Rio – many can't quite believe that this gem exists in the city.

“To celebrate the cinema's 100 years I want Hackney's community to come forwards with their stories, memories, and pictures linked to the Rio, which we can use for a series of celebratory exhibitions and events this autumn. These will help to show how the cinema has a special place in the hearts and history of Hackney, as well as the UK's independent cinema scene.”

Join the Great East End Walk

DO you know your ‘apples and pears’ from your ‘dog and bone’? If so, the Great East End Walk on 12 July could be, literally, up your street.

Organised to raise funds for St Joseph's Hospice, the annual event sees hundreds of people walk together on either a 10 or 15 mile route, taking in the sights and sounds of the East End.

This year, the walk finishes in style with a summer knees up on Well Street Common, complete with games, stalls, entertainment and refreshment.

There is no minimum fundraising target, but the aim is to try to raise £100 per adult and £20 per child.

To sign up for the Great East End Walk, visit: www.stjh.org.uk/GEEW; or call: 020 8525 6033. All entrants will get a free ‘Cockney style’ t-shirt and a medal.

Apply for broadband vouchers

THE Council is urging Hackney's small to medium-sized enterprises (SME) not to delay in applying for vouchers worth up to £3,000 towards the cost of super fast broadband, as part of the London Connection Voucher Scheme.

Fast broadband gives businesses added benefits, such as faster file-sharing and upload and download speeds. There are a number of broadband suppliers to choose from, which can be checked via a postcode search.

SMEs can register up until 31 March next year, however there is a limited amount of funding available.

For more details about the scheme, visit: www.connectionvouchers.co.uk/london

Sport boost for Hackney Downs

GOLDEN ducks, googleys, jump shots and crooked zebras are just some of the moves that residents may spot on Hackney Downs this summer.

The park has a new artificial cricket wicket, upgraded cricket field and new basketball practice nets, thanks to a £10,000 investment.

Local people, sports teams and schools will be able to use the new facilities for practice sessions, competitive fixtures and tournaments. A grant from the Mayor of London's Sports Facilities Fund, which is delivered by the Football Foundation, enabled the improvement works to be carried out.

To book the refurbished cricket wicket, call: 020 8986 7955.

The Hackney Downs pavilion, changing facilities and club room can also be booked.

Bike to the future

CYCLISTS spend more money in local shops than those who travel by other transport, and are an integral part of a fossil fuel-free future, but they need an image overhaul to get more people riding and to gain wider public support.

Those were some of the thought-provoking points raised during the fourth annual Hackney Cycling Conference, held at Hackney Picturehouse, on 5 June. It saw more than 200 delegates – including academics, campaigners, transport planners and London councillors – assembled at the Mare Street venue. Thirteen speakers, some from as far away as the USA and Mexico, shared their advice and expertise at the day-long convention.

Andy Clarke, President of the American League of Bicyclists, told the conference: “Cyclists make more trips to local shops and spend more there than people who travel by bus or drive. In San Francisco, 66 per cent of merchants say bike lanes have an overall positive effect on business.”

But, he added: “We [cyclists] are not our own best advocates, and studies show this. We need to improve our image.”

This year’s conference theme, ‘the economics of cycling in world-class megacities’, explored arguments for investing in cycling and its infrastructure, but also touched on other subjects, including the need to push the cycling agenda with

“ Cyclists make more frequent trips to local shops and spend more there than people who travel by bus or drive ” local and national decision-makers, the necessity for smart software to design a world where everyone can cycle, and the need to normalise cycling.

Dr Robin Lovelace, from the University of Leeds, whose team is building an IT tool to show which parts of the UK have the most potential for increased cycling, said the world was at the end of the fossil fuel age, and that cycling in cities was ‘part of the solution of a fossil fuel-free society’.

Indeed, Hackney is London’s premier cycling borough, with the highest rate of commuter cycling in the capital, and the lowest proportion of car-ownership in the country. It offers free cycle training to everyone who lives, works and studies in the borough, with more than 16,500 people having taken-up the sessions. In addition, the Council is currently rolling out a borough-wide 20mph speed limit, is using an app to increase its understanding of cycling habits, and last year launched a cycle loan scheme.

The conference, organised by the Council with help from Hackney Cycling Campaign (HCC), also gave residents the chance to attend two free film screenings at the Picturehouse, thanks to a partnership with the BFI. And outside Hackney Town Hall, passers-by were able to try out parent-and-child-friendly bikes, with demonstrations by staff from HCC and local bike shops.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods and Sustainability, said: “This year’s conference was our biggest and best yet. It brought together some of the world’s foremost thinkers on cycling and transport to share best-practice, offer advice and ideas, and ignite debate on how we improve cycling for those already riding and promote it to those who are not yet in the saddle.”

The conference was supported by Steer Davies Gleave, L&Q Housing, Cyclehoop and Transport Initiatives.

Hundreds of residents enjoyed the delicious food, free entertainment and informative stalls at the Woodberry Down Estate fun day on 6 June

All hail Hackney

The Woodberry Down Estate fun day saw the debut of a novel public engagement vehicle

HUNDREDS of residents enjoyed delicious food, live music and fun activities at the annual Woodberry Down Estate regeneration fun day.

The event on 6 June was also the first outing of an 'I Love Hackney' taxi, as part of the Council's 'Hackney: A Place For Everyone?' consultation (see opposite).

Residents made the most of free activities and information stalls, including a healthy eating stand, health checks, a community safety stall and a local history project run by the Woodberry Down Community Organisation (WDCO) – as well as dancing, gardening, cycling and a giant ball pit.

Families were entertained by DJs Mr

“As a family we always look forward to coming along to the fun day each year”

Mojo and Captain Fantastic and bands Dila V and the Odd Beats.

The Edge youth hub also opened its doors to youngsters who got to join in basketball, jewellery making, henna design and carnival dancing sessions.

Niki, who lives on the estate, said: “As a family we always look forward to coming along to the fun day each year.

This was the best one so far, and the children really enjoyed themselves.”

Manor House Development Trust (MHDT) volunteer, Ola, added: “The day was really good and the children had so much fun participating in the activities. The music was great and the wide variety of food was excellent.”

Over 20 volunteers from

MHDT helped out on the day, while representatives from regeneration partners – Hackney Council, Berkeley Homes, Genesis Housing Association and WDCO – answered residents' questions about the 20-year programme.

So far, on Woodberry Down Estate, 530 homes for social renting have been built, with 232 for shared ownership, and more than 300 for private sale to help pay for the scheme.

On completion, the regeneration programme is set to see 5,500 new social rented, private and shared ownership homes built together with a range of community facilities including an extended primary school, a new children's centre, and more green spaces.

Look out for the 'I Love Hackney' cab at upcoming community events this summer and share your views about the way the borough is changing and how that change is affecting you

You talkin' to me?

VISITORS to the fun day were the first to try out the Council's 'I Love Hackney' cab, where they got to share their thoughts on the changing face of the borough.

The taxi (above) will be touring community events this summer as part of the 'Hackney: A Place For Everyone?' consultation, which aims to speak to thousands of residents.

Residents can give their views via video camera in the back of the cab, or fill in an online or paper survey. The responses will help the Council understand views on the pace of change, as well as how to tackle the challenges facing the borough.

To have your say on the debate, visit: consultation.hackney.gov.uk/communications-and-consultation/hackney-a-place-for-everyone; or look out for the I Love Hackney cab at public events throughout the summer. A selection of some of the key events include:

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

'We can all do more to help'

ONE of Hackney's newest councillors, Sade Etti, has been named as the Speaker of Hackney for the coming year.

Following the local elections last year, Cllr Etti has spent the past 12 months working on behalf of the people of Clissold ward before being selected to take the role of ceremonial representative of the borough.

She said: "I'm delighted to have been elected Speaker. I want to reach out to the community, especially our younger residents, and inform them about the Council and the opportunities that are open to them all.

"I'm also really looking forward to finalising the details of a competition that will give young people the chance to win the opportunity to be my consort for the day. I'll be contacting schools and youth organisations shortly with more information."

On her first official engagement last month, Cllr Etti hosted a delegation from Norway, including the Mayor of Oslo. She said: "I'm looking forward to a good alliance and friendship between both cities."

Since moving to Hackney from Nigeria in 2004, Cllr Etti has been getting to know her neighbourhood. She said: "I've always been involved with my community ever since my mum got me involved in the Rotaract Club in Nigeria when I was 18. After all, it's the community that really matters.

"I'm always thinking about how I can make changes and what I can do

"It's the community that matters. I'm always thinking about how I can make changes and what I can do to make a difference" to make a difference."

During her year in office, Cllr Etti will be raising money for the Hackney Food Bank, a charity which provides food parcels for people in need, and something she has been involved with since it was set up in 2012.

She will also be raising money for Hestia Housing and Support, a charity that helps survivors of domestic abuse and their families rebuild their lives.

It is a cause that is very close to Cllr Etti's heart. She said: "As a survivor of domestic abuse, I'm passionate about telling people that if you speak out help is out there."

Immediate Theatre is the third worthy project that Cllr Etti plans to raise funds for. The theatre company supports local young people to develop their independence and confidence through drama.

As a busy working mum-of-four, the 47-year-old makes sure that she spends time with her family, especially her youngest children. She has a 26-year-old daughter, a 19-year-old son who lives in Nigeria, and twin nine-year-old boys.

She said: "Spending time with my children is so important to me. When we aren't going for football lessons and other activities we spend time together. Family is everything."

Physical activity and sport also play a part in Cllr Etti's busy life. She said: "I've always been sporty. I was proud to play volleyball for my college at the Nigerian Polytechnic Games. I still like to play table tennis, go walking and anything else that keeps me active."

As well as her part-time job as a project worker for Sanctuary Housing Association and studying for an Oil and Gas Management degree, Cllr Etti is also involved with her local church.

At the moment she is chair of the Community Impact Group, which helps local people who find themselves struggling with day-to-day life, especially when it comes to feeding their families.

She said: "Anyone can experience financial difficulties, and I'd like to think there would be someone out there to help. We can all do more and we should respect each other more and help those who need it."

A new speaker is elected every May at the Council's Annual General Meeting by fellow councillors. Cllr Etti takes the mantle from Cllr Sharon Patrick, Hackney's longest serving councillor.

Plastic fantastic

A NEW campaign to encourage people to recycle more around the house kicks off on 22 June.

As part of Recycle Week (22-28 June), residents are being urged to not only recycle items from their kitchen, but also from the bathroom, living room and bedroom.

In Hackney, plastic like tubs, pots and milk bottles have the lowest 'capture rate' of all recyclable materials. Some 4,800 tonnes are thrown away every year instead of being recycled.

CLlr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Hackney currently recycles almost 26 per cent of all its waste, but the majority of the rest thrown away by residents could also be recycled. With a disposal cost of over £105 per tonne, it's not just useful plastic which is being thrown away, but council tax payers' money.

"What's currently recycled makes a huge difference, so just imagine how much more could be achieved by recycling those items that are sometimes forgotten.

"We want people to think a little further than the kitchen and recycle items from other rooms."

People can recycle items from around the whole home. Shampoo, cleaning products, and liquid soap bottles should all go in the recycling from inside the bathroom.

Along with the usual milk bottles in the kitchen, washing-up liquid bottles, pots, tubs and ready meal trays can be recycled too. And from the cupboard under the sink, bleach and surface cleaner bottles can be recycled.

These plastic items can be turned into football shirts, fleeces and even more plastic bottles.

Recycling does not end in the home though. Plastic Bottle Man (pictured) will be hitting the streets and parks to remind people to use Hackney's recycling-on-the-go bins for their plastic drinks bottles and food containers.

Plastic Bottle Man will also be inviting people to take his recycling quiz for a chance to win £25.

Lost gardens of West Hackney are given a new lease of life

THREE previously derelict spaces that have been transformed into community areas were celebrated at a 'Lost Gardens of West Hackney' event on 18 June.

The spaces around St Paul's churchyard in Stoke Newington were regenerated through a partnership between the church and LDA Design consultancy.

Rev Niall Weir said: "The churchyard, disused burial ground and old recreation ground had fallen into terrible disrepair. They were overgrown, uninviting and used for anti-social activity." Andrew Harland, Senior Board Director at LDA Design, added: "There is a lot of history associated with these gardens and it's important that we revive and stitch them back into the surroundings for everyone to enjoy. Through the great partnership working with the church, local community and contractor we have been able to give a new life to these wonderful gardens and a focus for the whole area."

Funded through a series of grants, LDA Design transformed the spaces with new play equipment and a kitchen garden.

Award-winning app developed by Council employee to count tree cover

Jon Robinson (centre) with his winning app certificate

A COUNCIL employee has designed an app that will revolutionise how the borough manages its trees and woodlands.

Jon Robinson, Highways Asset Engineer, spent two years creating the tool which allows users to calculate the tree canopy coverage using aerial images – the first app of its kind in the UK.

The 38-year-old

Streetscene worker scooped a top gong last month for the app, called the Open Source Canopy Cover Audit (OSCCA), when he won The Trees and Technology Award at the London RE:LEAF Tree and Woodland Awards.

He said: "The ability to measure the canopy coverage of trees is an important step in the management of trees and woodlands within built-up areas. Canopies, rather than the number of trees, gives a more accurate representation of the quality of our green spaces."

Calculating canopy trends helps planners, like the Council, capture valuable information and decide where and how to invest in habitats, including the maintenance of old trees and the planting of new ones.

Before Jon's app, canopy coverage was visually calculated using aerial photos or satellite images, along with information gathered by planes, which was not very accurate.

Jon's app was created in partnership with the Council and London Tree Officers Association.

East End Film Festival

1-12 July, various locations

EIGHTEEN world premieres, eight European premieres, 20 UK premieres and 16 London premieres, covering subjects ranging from flying anarchists to Soviet x-rays.

In the words of its Artistic Director, Alison Poltock, the East End Film Festival 'comes of age' this year. And its fourteenth birthday party is going to be a big one, with Hackney at its heart.

► For more info, visit: www.eastendfilmfestival.com/

"Hackney has played many important roles during East End Film Festival's 14 year history", says Alison. Adding: "Local cinemas the Rio, Rich Mix and Hackney Picturehouse are important festival venues. And Hackney-based filmmakers have been responsible for many of the festival's best and most riveting films. "This year is no exception. In 2015 we have our biggest ever number of British films – 33 titles in total – from the East End and beyond."

ART & EXHIBITIONS

THE IDIOT

Until 28 Jun, Wed-Fri, various opening times

London-based, Spanish artist, Jamie Valtierra presents a cycle of paintings and drawings, and a group of prints produced in Florence, Italy last year. Valtierra describes this journey as 'the will of the idiot, an ongoing deciphering of the meaning of reality and its translation into the language of painting'. Free. All ages. Hundred Years Gallery, 13 Pearson Street, E2 8JD. Info: 020 3602 7973; www.hundredyearsgallery.com/exhibition-jaim-valtierra-the-idiot/

Until 29 Jun, 9am-5pm

Hungarian photographer Andi Gáldi Vinkó presents

a series of sociological portraits exploring disaffected youth. Alluding to an elusive paradise, the title combines 'Para', slang in Hungarian for 'fear', with 'disco', a term universally understood to indicate fun. 'This duality captures both the frailty and ludicrousness of the world, as well as the desire to celebrate one's own place in it'. Free. All ages. Stour Space, 7 Roach Rd, Hackney Wick, E3 2PA.

Last Night I Met You Dreaming

6-18 July, Hackney Showroom, 13 Amhurst Terrace, E8 2BT

STEP into a world of magic realism and follow Laura, who has forgotten how to feel, on her journey of discovery as she is transported to a lush, green world on the verge of collapse.

Laura lives in an absurd, mechanical world as a journalist. While writing an article about a place called 'The Region', her editor tries to block the story. As a result she gets sucked into this alternative world where she meets Lola, who is deeply connected to nature and leads her on a journey of discovery.

This exciting new show is a rediscovery of love and connection, exploring why we as a human race take from the land and how love, as a force, can turn that around.

The production is told in a visual style, combining physical theatre, live music and puppetry with narrative depth.

'Last Night I Met You Dreaming' is inspired by the work of Isabelle Allende, known for her literary style of portraying magical events in a realistic environment, and explores the human race's ambivalent relationship with nature. Get a kick out of sport

The FA-run Girls' Football Festival saw more than 250 youngsters play football on Hackney Marshes as part of Women's Sport Week

HUNDREDS of schoolgirls had a ball at a football festival on Hackney Marshes aimed at getting more women and girls involved in the beautiful game.

The FA-run Girls' Football Festival on 2 June saw more than 250 young women, aged five to 16, from across Hackney and the capital take part in matches, as well as workshops on refereeing, free-styling and skills development.

Girls were able to draw inspiration from not only female footballers at the all-day event, but also women coaches, referees, physiotherapists and volunteers.

It was held as part of Women's Sport Week and saw those involved in playing, delivering, or working in sport come together to celebrate and increase the profile of women's sport across the UK.

Polly Fildes, Women's Football National Project Officer for the FA, said: "Our overall goal is to get all the girls that attended interested in, and playing, the beautiful game."

The girls enjoyed a kick-about with Sophie Harris and Andria Georgiou from FA Women's Super League (WSL) club London Bees, who were on-hand to discuss life as top level female footballers.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "We want to tell girls that sport, including football, is not just for boys and men but for women too, no matter what their ability.

"The festival was an opportunity to celebrate women in football and also showcase what other avenues of the sport are open to girls."

Following the success of the event, the London FA, with the Council and its leisure partners Better, will now aim to put on more drop-in sessions at Mabley Green and Hackney Marshes to increase female participation in football.

All attendees received a free ticket to a match at their local FA WSL club.

"We want to tell girls that sport, including football, is not just for boys and men but for women too"

News in brief

Kingsmead Primary School nursery children explore sound and instruments with the Chamber Tots project

Hackney is top of the pops

HACKNEY has been honoured at the London Music Awards (LMAs), with two trophies returning to the borough after the prestigious ceremony on 11 June.

The LMAs celebrate the stars of London's music scene and included a category for schools that provide exceptional musical experiences for their pupils. Kingsmead primary, in E9, was one of just eight London schools presented with this award.

Executive Head, Louise Nichols, said: "Visitors to the school are often blown away by the skills and independence of our musicians, who are a credit to their skilled teachers and the school's musical culture. It is great to have this acknowledged on a wider stage."

Individual students were also under the spotlight in the Outstanding Music Scholars category. Louis Lodder, a Year 6 student at Simon Marks Jewish Primary School, N16, was just one of four young musicians in London to be singled out for the charity's music scholarship.

Louis, who plays the French horn, has already participated in the Hackney Training Orchestra, performed with the London Symphony Orchestra, and sung with the Hackney Borough Youth Choir. Headteacher Gillian Ross said: "We are incredibly proud. It's a stunning achievement. Louis is a great all-rounder at school and modest about his achievements. His enjoyment of music is just wonderful to watch."

Help Millfields School secure funding for a new playground

A HACKNEY primary school with a high proportion of children with special educational needs (SEN) is competing for funding to build a new playground that would be 'life changing' for its pupils.

Millfields Community School in Clapton is bidding for a £25,000 community award from the OneFamily foundation. One of the largest primary schools in the borough, its playground is, according to parent Sam Crane, 'too small and much of the equipment is very old and degraded.'

Adding: "Many of the children have no outdoor space at home and 25 per cent have special educational needs. It is hugely important for the pupils to be able to play in an environment that's safe, exciting and inspiring."

A not-for-profit company, called Made from Scratch, has worked with the children to design a new playground that incorporates their ideas and SEN provisions to ensure that all children can play safely together.

A total of £536,848 has been awarded to Hackney projects, including four youth organisations, by the Big Lottery Fund. Pictured: Voyage Youth

Youth project funding

OVER half a million pounds has been awarded to eight Hackney organisations – including four youth projects – by the Big Lottery Fund.

The grants, handed out by the Awards for All and Reaching Communities programmes on 9 June, are designed to help the communities most in need.

A total of £536,848 was awarded to Hackney projects. Youth charity Teen Action received £9,622 to deliver creative courses for young people with mental health issues to boost their confidence.

Voyage Youth was awarded £9,950 to fund

“Today’s awards are all about supporting people taking the lead to make a positive change in their local areas”

a programme tackling violence and anti-social behaviour to build trust between young people and the police.

Legatee Educational Trust was given £9,000 to buy new production equipment for its media training programme, which focuses on supporting young people who have disabilities, and those who are not in education, employment or training.

And the North London Foodbank received £10,000 to deliver a two-week play scheme themed around financial education, as well as leisure activities for children from low income backgrounds.

Lyn Cole, Big Lottery Fund Deputy Director for England, said: “Today’s awards are all about supporting people taking the lead to make a positive change in their local areas.

These excellent projects will help improve communities in London through National Lottery funding.”

Other Hackney organisations to receive grants were the Roj Women Association; Urban Crafts Foundation; I Can Too; and The Maytree Respite Centre, which alone received £468,826 to support people in suicide crisis in Hackney, the City of London, Haringey and Islington.

News in brief

Become a Hackney Fire Cadet

YOUNG people are being encouraged to join the Hackney Fire Cadets to gain qualifications and citizenship skills. The programme offers participants the opportunity to enhance their confidence and develop transferable skills, while working towards a BTEC level 2 qualification. Cadets will also get to work with other uniformed organisations, and represent the London Fire Brigade at events. The programme is made up of activities designed to stimulate both mental and physical health, and includes training exercises like hose running and ladder drills. Christine Smith, Fire Cadet, said: “I love being a cadet as it’s challenging, but also good fun, I’ve learnt lots of skills and become more confident. I also really enjoy engaging with my local community and the events we take part in.” Recruits should be aged 14 to 17. The course runs for the academic year starting in September. It will be on Wednesdays, from 5.30pm to 8.30pm, at Shoreditch Fire Station, Old Street. To apply, e-mail: susan.douglas@london-fire.gov.uk; or call: 07795 542435.

Get your film on the big screen

A POP-UP cinema event is calling for submissions from up-and-coming young filmmakers. Hackney Mash will feature a short-film competition, director’s Q&A session, and feature film screening, with all the entries filmed in, or inspired by, the borough. The free evening is part of the East End Film Festival and will take place at Dalston Roof Garden on 9 July. It is organised by Hackney-based creative agency Mediorite which worked with young people to bring the event to life. The night is for over 16s only. Book your free ticket at: <http://t.co/iEbDRu9QRC> Competition submissions should be in .mov, .mp4, or .avi format. The deadline is 25 June. Send films to: hackneymash@gmail.com. Ellie, from Hackney youth organisation SkyWay, gets some rugby tips from World Cup winner Will Greenwood

Rugby World Cup sport star gives youngsters a masterclass

By Dila Tumer

WORLD Cup winner Will Greenwood gave young people a rugby masterclass to mark Volunteers’ Week.

For many of the 30 young people that attended the event on 3 June, it was the first time they had ever picked up a rugby ball. While introducing them to the skills of the game, Greenwood also gave the group advice on how to succeed both in the classroom and on the pitch.

The event was part of Deutsche Bank and charity Sported’s joint ‘sporteducate’ programme, developed to help young people from some of London’s poorest boroughs achieve their goals through a combination of sport, education and employability sessions.

Will said: “Sporteducate offers young people some fantastic opportunities to get ahead with their education and future careers. It’s been a real privilege to meet such an energetic and talented bunch of youngsters.”

Ellie, from Hackney youth group SkyWay, said: “I don’t follow rugby and this was my first time playing. I’m looking forward to watching the World Cup. I might even start playing myself.”

Tour de Hackney

Children from 10 primary schools took part in the borough's first 'Tour de Hackney' programme to encourage them to cycle more

CHILDREN from 10 Hackney primary schools have been taking part in the borough's first 'Tour de Hackney.'

The pilot project aims to get more youngsters cycling using the thrill of competition to engage them in the sport.

In a series of events, pupils first tried out cycling on static exercise bikes to build their confidence. Then they took to the park for track racing, with certificates awarded to the winners and most improved cyclists.

Participating schools were also given the opportunity to enter a team in the Hackney Primary Schools Cycling League, and compete in a variety of cycling events in local parks.

Diane Lapworth, a teacher at William Patten School in Stoke Newington, said: "This is a great way of introducing children to cycling and to ignite their interest in the world of competitive cycling.

"It's great to see them so excited today and several children who weren't confident about cycling before have been taking part and really enjoying themselves."

Taarick Omar, nine, added: "I really liked racing, but it's about taking part. I've been on a bike before, but always fall off. Today I felt more comfortable and I'd like to cycle more."

The project, funded by Transport for London and delivered by the Council, in partnership with Cycle Club Hackney, is part of a wider programme of work to get more children cycling and less pupils travelling to school by car.

Since 2010, over 3,200 students have received cycle training and all local education authority schools have been involved in the sustainable travel to school programme (STARS), which has seen people driving to school drop from 18.5 per cent in 2007/08 to 8.3 per cent last year.

News in brief

New tennis pavilion at Clissold

GRASSROOTS tennis in Hackney has received a major boost with the opening of the new Clissold Park Tennis Pavilion in Stoke Newington.

The new building – made possible through an investment of £680,000 from the Lawn Tennis Association, the Council and Greater London Authority – includes a purpose-built clubhouse, changing facilities, a small shop, club room and meeting room.

Hackney Tennis, which manages all tennis facilities across the borough, will make it their new home.

Floodlights and new court fencing have also been installed at the eight tennis courts and two mini tennis courts, allowing Hackney Tennis to run more competitions, expand its holiday programmes and develop its junior programme.

Become a peer support worker

EAST London NHS Foundation Trust is recruiting for volunteering positions in the mental health sector.

Peer support workers are paired with someone on an in-patient ward or living in the community. Their role is to aid that person's recovery through one-to-one emotional and practical support.

Volunteers need to have used mental health services themselves in the past and understand the challenges of overcoming mental health problems.

Training, which is only available to current and former users of mental health services in Hackney, Tower Hamlets and Newham, occurs over eight weeks for one day a week. Interviews will take place at the end of July, with training beginning the following month.

For details on becoming a peer support worker, e-mail: susan.henry@elft.nhs.uk

Hackney SHINE helps residents to prepare for hot weather

OLDER people, young children and anyone who suffers from heart and lung conditions are being reminded to take extra precautions in hot weather.

The Council's Seasonal Health Interventions Network (SHINE) service provides tips for staying healthy in hot weather.

These include: staying out of the sun between 11am-3pm; drinking plenty of water to stay hydrated and avoiding alcohol and caffeine; taking a bottle of water with you when you travel by public transport; keeping cool with lighter coloured and loose cotton clothes; and taking cool showers or baths.

Tim Hendry, Hackney SHINE co-ordinator, said: "We are here all year providing information and support to residents across the borough. Call us today for simple advice on coping with the hot weather."

Hackney SHINE also helps residents access a variety of other services, such as information about getting the best fuel tariffs, how to tackle debt, and making sure that residents claim all the benefits they're entitled to.

50 years of Hackney Archives

By Siân Mogridge

HERE at Hackney Archives, we're used to finding out about the history of different parts of our borough and the people, buildings and organisations that have been active in it. This article's a bit different though – this is about our own history.

The London Borough of Hackney turned 50 on 1 April. The first Borough Archivist, Stanley Tongue, was appointed in the same year, so it's also the Archive's birthday.

While we are very pleased to reach our 50th year, in archival terms that is actually quite a young age. Our documents date back long before 1965 however. Indeed, our oldest document is from 1356, and so is well past its 650th birthday! We hope the records in our care will still be around for people to look at in 650 years' time.

Fifty years ago, Stanley had a big job on his plate. The current borough of Hackney was formed from three pre-1965 boroughs – Hackney, Shoreditch and Stoke Newington. Each of them had their own collection of local studies books on the history of their borough; each of them had historical collections which had been donated to them at one date or another; and each had their own borough council records. These all had to be brought together, listed, stored and formed into one collection.

It included a wide range of material. For instance, there was the antiquarian collection of John Robert Daniel Tyssen, a son of the Lord of the Manor of Hackney, donated to the parish of Hackney in the late 19th century. It is a large collection, including transcripts, maps and water colours of many significant Hackney buildings, and it formed a backbone of the new Archives.

There was also the Dawson Library – over 600 books donated to the parish of Shoreditch upon the death of John Dawson in 1765. All three boroughs had old rate books (basically Council Tax records, sometimes useful for family historians) many of which were very large.

Amalgamating the three different collections took 20 years and was finally finished by Stanley's successor, David Mander. However that was not the only work that Stanley and his successors had to do.

Over the last 50 years, Archives staff have been responsible for finding and taking in new collections, both recent and ancient, as well as preserving the records already in their care, and making them available to the public.

The advent of computers provided both opportunities and challenges. The Archives got its first computer in the late 1980s, and in 2000 was a partner in setting up a cutting-edge database for displaying historic images. These days the team has to worry about how to preserve digital documents, images and e-mails, while still looking after the paper and parchment collections.

In these tasks the Archives has been fortunate to have had the help of a number of enthusiastic volunteers who carried out work which the staff would not have been able to do by themselves. This includes cataloguing, re-packaging, and the massive job of digitising most of the old photographs. In fact, one or two particularly dedicated volunteers have spent more years at Hackney Archives than most staff members!

The team has also been lucky to have the Friends of Hackney Archives. Founded in 1985, it supports the service, buys new collections and produces an award-winning local history journal.

Hackney Archives' first home in 1965 was in Pitfield Street Library, Hoxton. However in 1976, the Archives moved to a purpose-built space in the basement of the Rose Lipman Library on De Beauvoir Road. It remained there for over 35 years.

For the last three years, the Archives has been based in new facilities at Dalston CLR James Library. There is a public search room on the second floor and archival strong rooms, with temperature and humidity controls for the storage of documents, in the basement.

Although the strong rooms aren't open to the public, the Archives runs occasional tours. Residents are also welcome to visit the search room any time during opening hours. So why not go and check it out?

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR JULES PIPE

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is elected annually from among the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Sharon Patrick.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. This week's Waterhouse recipe is brought to you by one of our talented Blue Marble trainees, Fern Healy. A twist on traditional pesto, this version includes a tasty mix of rocket and walnuts. The pesto is served with tagliatelle, cherry tomatoes and topped with grated parmesan cheese and crushed walnuts.

Rocket and walnut pesto tagliatelle

Makes 6 portions

Preparation time
15 mins

Cooking time
30 mins

Ingredients

- 1kg rocket
- 1 bunch of basil
- Extra virgin olive oil
- 7 cloves of garlic
- 2 nests of tagliatelle
- 10 cherry tomatoes
- 100g parmesan cheese
- 200g walnuts
- Salt and pepper.

For the pasta

- Boil water in a deep pot with a pinch of salt and drop of olive oil, then add the three nests of tagliatelle. Cook until al dente (firm to the bite, but still soft)
- While the pasta is cooking, add 3 dessert spoons of the pesto you've just made into a small saute pan. Then quarter four cherry tomatoes and add them to the pan. Season with salt and pepper
- Add a little water and/or vegetable stock to the pesto and keep the pan moving otherwise it will burn
- When the pasta is cooked, add it to the pesto and toss. Keep on the heat while tossing for 30 seconds. Add a handful of fresh rocket and toss
- Get a pair of tongs and wrap the majority of the tagliatelle around them and transfer to the plate, spin the plate as you place the pasta in the centre. Get the remaining tomatoes and pesto and place on top. Grate the parmesan over the top, and crush some walnuts over the top. Enjoy.

Method

For the pesto

- Blend the basil with stalks still on. Add most of the rocket, blend and slowly add olive oil
- Crush the garlic and walnuts and add to mixture. Season with salt and pepper and lemon juice

Waterhouse - through Blue Marble Training - supports young people across the borough towards careers in the restaurant industry. Owned by Shoreditch Trust, income from this enterprise goes back into training programmes across the borough. Waterhouse in Orsman Road, N1, is open five days a week.

Have your say on reviewing the Council's gambling policy

THE Council is in the process of reviewing its gambling policy, and is asking residents and businesses for comments before finalising licensing guidelines for the next three years.

The current gambling policy has been in place since 2007 and, by law, the Council has to review it every three years.

The policy sets out the principles that the Council will apply when considering applications under the Gambling Act 2005.

Before issuing a licence, the Council considers the following objectives: preventing gambling from being a source of crime or disorder; ensuring that gambling is carried out in a fair and open way; and protecting children and other vulnerable persons from being harmed or exploited by gambling.

Since 2007, the Council's Licensing Committee has been responsible for granting premises licences for: bingo halls; betting shops, including tracks (for horse or dog racing); amusement arcades; and notices for gambling activities.

There are currently 62 licensed gambling premises across the borough: 58 betting shops; one bingo hall, and three adult gaming centres.

There are drop-in information sessions on 7 July at Stoke Newington Library; or 6 August at Dalston CLR James Library. For more info, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/licensing; or e-mail: consultation@hackney.gov.uk. Comments can also be submitted to: FREEPOST HACKNEY LICENSING SERVICE. Comments must be received by 4 September.
